and answer the questions.

Halloween was originally a Celtic festival called Samhain. It was the end of harvest time and the beginning of the new year. (November 1st was the new year for the Celts). The Celts were people who lived in what is now Ireland, Scotland, England, Wales and part of France. They believed that spirits rose from the dead and roamed the earth on this day. The Celts also thought that there were many other strange and scary creatures such as ghosts and demons about at that time. People sacrificed animals and lit bonfires in respect of the dead and to keep the evil spirits away. Some of the Celts dressed as evil spirits and creatures to fool the real spirits and be left alone. It is thought that 'trick or treating' could be related to Samhain when people believed fairies (faeries) disguised themselves as beggars, knocked on doors and asked for food. The people who gave them food were rewarded while those who didn't had something bad happen to them. Other people believe 'trick or treating' developed from beggars who went door to door praying for souls in return for food on the last day of October. Often the food the beggars received was called "soul cakes".
